The Graphical Protocol

INTRODUCTION

Sample preparation protocols are commonly lost during day-to-day laboratory work. That is why PreOmics came up with its new graphical protocol placed conveniently in the sample preparation kit. Just open the box and get started. It contains all the information you will need to get going and comes with an easy to use starting material look-up table. To order the kit and for more information e-mail us at info@preomics.com.

The New Graphical Protocol

Never lose your protocol

CONTENT & USE

You will find our graphical protocol on the inside of lid. It depicts all steps you need to perform for a successful sample preparation. As always, each buffer tube is color-coded. Volumes, time and temperatures are shown on the protocol so no need to scramble through the full-scale protocol.

A new feature is the look-up table underneath the graphical protocol. You will find the most common starting materials used in proteomic research with estimate quantities you will need for a preparation. These values are a good starting point to optimize your workflow.
